

UNS

- Love insults, disguised in the cloud,
And welcome force of that unuly crowd.
Passions kept their place, and transgressed not the boundaries of their proper natures; nor were the disorders begun, which are occasioned by the licence of unuly appetites. Glans.
You must not go where you may dangers meet.
Th' unuly sword will no distinction make,
And beauty will not there give wounds, but take. Dryden.
UNSA'VE. adj. Not secure; hazardous; dangerous.
If they would not be drawn to seem his adversaries, yet others should be taught how unsafe it was to continue his friends. Hosker, b. v.
With speed retir'd
Where erst was thickest fight, th' angelick throng,
And left large field, unsafe within the wind
Of such commotion. Milton's Par. Lost, b. vi.
Uncertain ways unsafe are,
And doubt a greater mischief than despair. Denham.
Phlegyan robbers made unsafe the road. Dryden.
UNSA'VELY. adv. Not securely; dangerously.
Take it, while yet 'tis praise, before my rage,
Unsafe just, break loose on this bad age;
So bad, that thou thyself hadst no defence
From vice, but barely by departing hence. Dryden.
As no man can walk, so neither can he think, uneasily or unsafely; but in using, as his legs, so his thoughts amble, which a virtuous man never doth. Greiv.
UNSA'ID. adj. Not uttered; not mentioned.

UNSATISFACTORY. adj. Not giving satisfaction; not clearing the difficulty.
That speech of Adam, 'The woman thou gavest me to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat, is an un- satisfactory reply, and therein was involved a very important error. Brown's Vulg. Errors.
Latria to the cross, is point blank against the definition of the council of Nice; and it is an unsatisfactory answer to say, they only were against latria given to images for themselves. Stillingfleet.
UNSA'TISFIEDNESS. n. f. [from unsatisfied.] The state of being not satisfied; want of fulness.
Between my own unsatisfiedness in conscience, and a necessity of satisfying the importunities of some, I was persuaded to chuse rather what was safe, than what seemed just. K. Charles.
That unsatisfiedness with transitory fruitions, that men deplore as the unhappiness of their nature, is indeed the privilege of it, as it is the prerogative of men not to be pleased with such fond toys as children doat upon. Boyle.
UNSA'TISFIED. adj.
1. Not contented; not pleased.
Elizabeth being to resolve upon a great officer, and being by some put in some doubt of that person, whom she

In so unseemly to confess receipt
Of that, which hath so faithfully been paid. Shakespeare.
UNSE'EMLINESS. n. f. Indecency; indecorum; unbeclinefs.
All as before his fight, whom we fear, and whose presence to offend with any the least unseemliness, we would be surely as loth as they, who most reprehend or deride that we do. Hosker, b. v.
UNSE'ELY. n. f. Indecent; uncomely; unbecoming.
Contentions as yet were never able to prevent two evils;
the one a mutual exchange of unseemly and unjust disgraces offered by men, whose tongues and passions are out of rule;
the other a common hazard of both, to be made a prey
by such as study how to work with most advantage in private. Hosker.
Let us now devise
What best may for the present serve to hide
The parts of each from other, that seem most
To shame obnoxious, and unseemly seen. Milton.
Her gifts
Were such, as under government well seem'd; Unseemly to bear rule. Milton's Par. Lost.
